Hall of Fame

At Zuccardi Valle de Uco, when it comes to producing world class Argentine wine, their philosophy is simple. As José Zuccardi puts it, "The word 'family' is central." Third generation family-owner, Sebastian Zuccardi brings a new determination to explore Argentina's many microclimates and soils.

Zuccardi Serie A "Argentina Series" reveals the richness of soils and microclimates of our country, through outstanding wines that express each grape variety.

Zuccardi Serie A Torrontés 2023

"Fragrant and floral white with lemon blossoms, white grapefruit and peach aromas. Salty undertones. It's medium-bodied, focused and flavorful, with an excellent balance of density and freshness. Persistent, too. Drink now. Screw cap."

Zuccardi Serie A Malbec 2024

"The standout in the introductory Serie A range is the 2024 Serie A Malbec. It opens with a black-fruited, savory nose accented with tobacco and dried herb aromas. The palate is rich and fleshy, transitioning to a staining yet elegant, impressively agile finish. As is consistent across the portfolio at Zuccardi, the precision and finesse on display here are unbeatable at this price point."

Zuccardi Serie A Bonarda 2020

"There's even more juiciness in the 2020 Serie A Bonarda than in the 2019, always being careful to avoid over-ripeness. This has some more tannin in this generous vintage, more like 2017 than 2018. There are plenty of aromatic herbs, and the wine feels very young. Drink 2021-2023."

Zuccardi Q wines are of the highest quality, made from the oldest vines, of up to 40 years of age, under supervision of a specialized viticultural team (that actually marks the individual vines destined for this line with a 'Q' for 'Quality'). These wines see 10 – 16 months in oak and are only made in vintages of exceptional quality.

Legacy & Future Vintages

Zuccardi Q Chardonnay 2023

"The 2023 Chardonnay Zuccardi Q comes from Guatallary and El Peral in the Uco Valley. Half of the wine was aged in 500-liter used barrels, while the other half remained in concrete vats. Bright yellow in color, it offers aromas of pear and acacia with an enticing herbal note and a hint of ginger. Dry and lean, the taut, malic palate is lightly concentrated and refreshing. This high-altitude white is leaner than in previous vintages."

2024 "Vinified in 70% concrete tanks and 40% well-used 500-liter barrique, the 2024 Q Chardonnay opens with an expressive, iodine-tinged nose, an orchard-fruited core and a citrus-driven fragrant lift. The palate combines a juicy, succulent core with an incisive, focused precision that runs through the sleek, vibrant finish."

Zuccardi Q Tempranillo 2018

"They want to keep the Tempranillo for longer before it's released, so the current vintage from the Q range is the 2018 Q Tempranillo. This comes from Santa Rosa in the traditional part of Mendoza, mentioned on the label, a historical wine here with pergola vines planted some 40 years ago by the grandfather of the current generation. He likes the wine after some time in bottle, a little like the wines from Rioja in Spain, matured in well-seasoned 225-liter French oak barrels. So, it has a slightly different style from the rest of the range, with spiciness from the élevage, notes of tobacco and a sensation of sweetness, ripeness with control, 14% alcohol and a velvety mouthfeel."

Poligonos San Pablo Albariño 2022

"This is the second vintage of albariño for the Polígonos line, and it comes from the vineyards that the Zuccardi family planted in 2013 in the San Pablo zone, up against the first mountain chains of the Andes, about 1,400 meters above sea level. This is totally marked by citrusy, juicy acidity that funnels freshness to this albariño from the mountains, a place that's not at all common in a variety that always faces the sea. Here there are herbs, ripe white fruits, and a lot of freshness."

Poligonos Tupungato Sauvignon Blanc 2022

"The pungent 2022 Polígonos Tupungato Sauvignon Blanc from La Carrera (but La Carrera is not yet an IG or appellation) is from a parral that is around 30 years old and planted at 1,550 meters above sea level, where the grapes have pungent flavors of fig. They started vinifying this in 2019 (but I never tasted it until today). It has a similitude with the one produced by Matias Riccitelli, with lots of aromatic herbs and pungent herbal notes, tomato vine, green peas and beans and citrus notes. It has very tasty flavors and is almost salty, with 12.5% alcohol and extremely high acidity (10.4) and freshness (pH 3.1). It fermented in concrete with some skin contact (very short) to extract the aromatic compounds from the skins but without making an orange wine… Superb. It should develop nicely in bottle."

"The 2020 Cabernet Franc Poligonos Del Valle De Uco San Pablo was aged for 10 months in French oak. Bright purple in hue. The heart of the nose is herbal with gentle notes of jalapeño and mint. Continuing on the nose, clear fruity aromas spring forward including fresh plum and cherry. 93pts Vinous 11/21

2021 "Enticing black pepper, dried herbs and tangy thyme and citrus, together with blueberries and lavender on the nose. This is so pure, racy and characterful. So intense and broad, but medium-bodied and not hefty. On the contrary, this is so easy to drink. Unique style, coming from high-altitude vineyards. Drink or hold."

Legacy & Future Vintages

Poligonos Paraje Altamira Malbec 2022

"A deep malbec with tons of black and blue berries, hints of black pepper, oyster sauce and violets. Full-bodied and flavorful on the palate with ample, tight but caressing tannins. Powerful, concentrated and compact. Drink now or hold."

Poligonos Gualtallary Malbec 2020

"The 2020 Malbec Poligonos Del Valle De Uco Gualtallary was aged in concrete. A dark, bright purple in hue. The liqueur-inflected nose offers ripe notes of plum and blackberry with subtle hints of violet. Compact in the mouth with good freshness, the young, reactive tannins and trace of chalk keep things tight, lending the wine a rugged character with sustained flavor."

Zuccardi Concreto Malbec 2021

"The 2021 Concreto Malbec has to be one of the finest vintages of this wine despite its youth and still shy personality. But there are tons of flowers, wild herbs and berries there waiting to emerge in an insinuating way, with austerity but unfurling layers and layers as the wine sits in the glass. It's incredibly fine-boned with chalky tannins that scream limestone, full of precision and purity. Drink 2023-2030."

Zuccardi Tito 2020

"Super fresh, with bright aromas of crunchy red fruit, plush plum, heady violet, spiced liquorice, rosemary and thyme, while the palate is laced with elegant, fine grained tannins and lush fruit. Very serious, but at the same time cheerful and delicious!"

97pts, Platinum Decanter WWA 2022

"Shows good depth of black cherries, scented violets, dried herbs, black licorice and cloves. A full-bodied malbec that shows tension on the palate, with fresh acidity and lots of dusty tannins. Nervy and nicely austere with a chalky finish. 85% malbec and 15% cabernet franc. Drink or hold."

José Zuccardi 2020

"The 2018 José Zuccardi mixes Malbec from different regions in the Valle de Uco (today, Altamira and Gualtallary) all with limestone soils. It always has a touch of Cabernet Sauvignon (only 5% to 10%), which is not mentioned on the label, and is now matured in foudre for two years. I tasted this next to the 2019, where there are no differences other than the nuances from the year, with similar alcohol and acidity, but the sensation is of a little wider and powerful in the 2018. The wine feels very stable and harmonious after the long élevage, but there are no traces of oak. It's serious and powerful, expressive and open, with a round and full palate and great persistence."

93pts Enthusiast 11/24 | 93pts Wine Advocate 05/25

2015 "Sebastián Zuccardi makes this cuvée to honor the style his father, José, developed in the early 2000s. Malbec grown in Altamira provides the lush, powerful fruit of the wine while a small addition of cabernet sauvignon adds notes of fir tree and pencil lead. It feels generous and regal, structured by mineral tannins, with a hint of spicy alcohol adding extra force. This is built for a thick-cut grass-fed steak."

Zuccardi Botánico Chardonnay 2022

"Sourced from Gualtallary's Monestario section, the 2022 Botánico opens with a distinctly herbal bouquet accented by dried white flowers, grapefruit zest and crushed stone aromas. The palate combines a seamless, supple profile with an electric, vibrant energy that runs through the stony, nuanced, swelling finish, where additional layers of citrus-driven energy and mineral-driven persistence continue to unfold with aeration. It's a clean, concise and angular expression of Uco Valley Chardonnay."

2023 "A rising star in the Familia Zuccardi portfolio, the 2023 Chardonnay Botánico comes from their vineyards in Gualtallary, Tupungato. Fermented and aged in concrete, the warm 2023 vintage saw harvest occur nearly a week earlier than in 2022, as early as the beginning of February. The 2023 reveals subtle herbal aromas of vermouth, lavender and herbs with a hint of hops. Broad and fairly rich, with good tension on the palate, it finishes with a touch of green apple. A true reflection of its origins, its chalky texture defines the mouthfeel."

Zuccardi Fósil Chardonnay 2022

"The wine hails from San Pablo in Uco Valley. In this cold vintage, both white and red wines from this appellation show complexity. This Chardonnay starts with an enticing nose of wet stone, white blossoms and a touch of ginger. The citrus and textured palate includes notes of Meyer lemon, clementine and dried herbs. There is a light saline note in the delicious finish."

2023 "The 2023 Chardonnay Fósil is a statement of intent–a vineyard planted in San Pablo with the aim of producing great wine. Ever since its first release, the 2016 vintage, Fósil has quickly established itself as a high-altitude white with a refreshing, non-ripe profile. Even in a warm vintage like 2023, the Chardonnay Fósil offers herbal and reductive notes, with hints of huacatay(a native Andean herb) alongside lime and lemon, all set against a soft backdrop of linden blossom. Lean and vibrant, the palate is pure and chalky in texture, flowing with a light, compact feel. The 2023 vintage solidifies its terroir-driven character."

Zuccardi Aluvional Paraje Altamira 2019

"The 2019 Aluvional Paraje Altamira comes from the south of Altamira… they used 80% to 100% full clusters and stems– one of the highest, because there's a lot of limestone. But this wine is always foot trodden because they want to avoid carbonic maceration… It matured exclusively in their raw concrete vats. The wine is serious, with an austere nose and some serious fruit (it's slightly lower in alcohol than the other two). It's very chalky and has very fine tannins and a texture that can be reminiscent of a Barolo, with some flowers emerging after some time in the glass. Drink date: 2023 - 2032."

Zuccardi Aluvional Los Chacayes 2018

"Blueberries and blackberries with some black-olive and dark-stone undertones. It's full-bodied with chewy tannins that are polished, yet slightly dusty. Some walnut highlights to the dark fruit in the aftertaste. Give it two or three years to come together. Try after 2023."

Zuccardi Aluvional Gualtallary Malbec 2019

"The 2019 Aluvional Gualtallary comes from the section people call Monasterio, although the official division of subzones has not yet been approved. This is always the wildest (Sebastián Zuccardi calls it Wildtallary…), with an explosive nose of wild herbs and flowers, thyme, rockrose and lavender, interwoven with violets and coupled with a laced texture with very fine-grained, chalky tannins, showcasing what the zone can do and why it was made famous. They harvest by soil, because it's not all the same, and they look for mid-palate depth using parts where they have caliche stones but also a little bit of clay, just bellow the hills (los cerros). Their main work here is to avoid exuberance and give it restraint, and it comes through as refined and slender; if you let the grapes ripen too much, you can have heavier aromas reminiscent of black olives, of which there's nothing here. They do a gentler second half of the fermentation, just wetting the cap with buckets (by hand) and avoiding cold fermentations. It seems to work wonders... Simply superb, this is super elegant but in an austere, tight and precise way."

Zuccardi Finca Los Membrillos Semillon 2019

"This wine comes from a hectare that the Zuccardi's planted to semillon in 2013 in the Los Membrillos estate, just across the road to the east of their Piedra Infinita winery in Altamira. The soils there have abundant calcium carbonate-coated gravel. This wine was aged in 500-liter barrels for two years, and already, despite its youth, is a ripe, oily wine with honeyed tones accompanied by intense, almost citrusy acidity. It's a big and imposing wine with an enveloping texture, all of which, by the way, foretells its tremendous cellaring potential. This white will last a decade and much more in the bottle."

Zuccardi Finca Los Membrillos Cabernet Sauvignon 2018

"The difference between the 2018 Finca Los Membrillos and the 2017 I tasted next to it was notable. In the cooler 2018, the wine showed a lot more restraint and less ripeness. It's a single-vineyard bottling of pure Cabernet Sauvignon that reveals spicy and peppery notes; it's balsamic and minty without excess. The palate is medium-bodied and the tannins are fine, textbook of the variety. There's more complexity, balance and finesse here than in the 2017. Cabernet Sauvignon is super sensitive to the conditions of the year; this is grainier, more textured, fresher and more elegant."

2019 "Such a deep yet exotic perfume, showing hawthorn, blueberries, dried herbs, incense, licorice and preserved plums. Full-bodied palate, packed with precise, polished tannins. Very assertive and nicely chewy. A little early now. Better from 2024."

Zuccardi Finca Las Cerrilladas 2019

"A new red in the "Fincas" single-vineyard range, the 2019 Finca Las Cerrilladas was produced with grapes from Gualtallary and is an intense and aromatic red with the wild profile from Gualtallary. It has 14.5% alcohol and is ripe and juicy, with very good acidity and freshness. It seems to me like there's more consistency in Gualtallary than in Altamira. They have 25 to 30 plots on the property, different soils and exposures, different ways of pruning, too; they deconstruct the property, vinifying everything separately, and then they build the wine through blending, like they do for all the Finca wines. Like the rest of their bottlings, they only use concrete and indigenous yeasts for the fermentation and aging of the wine, but here they use less full clusters, perhaps between 30% to 50%. There's a different tactile sensation from Altamira, and this is firmer, with more severe tannins. Here, the challenge is to avoid over-ripeness, and they have managed nicely. Drink Date: 2024 - 2032."

"This is the first commercial vintage of this wine from Zuccardi's own vineyards, planted in 2014 in the Lomas del Jaboncillo zone, in what is known as Monasterio, in Gualtallary. It comes from calcium-rich soils mixed with clay that makes them look pinkish. Fermented in concrete and then aged in the same vessels for a year, this has all the tension of wines grown on limestone, the mouth-filling black fruits, the sensation of light that comes from the acidity amid those dense flavors. A deep and intense look at Gualtallary."

Zuccardi Finca Piedra Infinita 2017

"They use some specific soils for the 2017 Finca Piedra Infinita, up to eight different plots, but not all plots contribute to the wine every vintage; in general, the zones with 20 to 60 centimeters of soil and then large stones with calcium carbonate are reflected in the wines. So, they deconstruct the vineyard, and then they build the blend with the plots they like for each wine, up to eight here. There's a little more ripeness and exuberance here within the general austerity of the whole Piedra Infinita range, especially when compared with the 2018s. They harvested 15 to 20 days earlier than in 2018 (or in 2016) and they had to run, but the separation they have by soil helped them to harvest earlier the earlier-ripening parts of the vineyard. That gave them a great advantage and they produced very good 2017s, but the condition of the year, a shorter cycle and a more hurried year was what it was. This 2017 is not as long as the 2018, and there is a strong chalkiness in the finish. Drink 2021 - 2028."

2018 "Aromas of crushed fruit with mushrooms, dried flowers, ash, charcoal, iodine and bark, following through to a full-bodied palate with superb depth of fruit and layers of polished, fine tannins. Extremely long and seamless. A beauty by all accounts. Complex. Juicy. Supple. Better after 2023, when it will give you all it has stored up in goodness, character and uniqueness."

2019 "Quiet complexity that needs time in the glass. While it is brooding and deep, there is also a perfumed, floral and herbal aspect that makes it so attractive and unforgettable, even at such an embryonic stage. Freshly crushed blueberries, dried licorice, decadent violets, crushed stones and ash on the nose. Satin-textured tannins on the palate, which are tense, chalky and seamless. Powerful and juicy with impeccable balance. A great, cerebral and intrinsic malbec from Argentina. You can drink now, if you want, but it is a wine that you'd want to keep for the next two decades. A real charmer, especially for the wine nerds. Buy this and try!"

2020 "They used more grapes from places with a little more soil and resistance to heat and dry conditions in a warmer year like 2020 for the 2020 Finca Piedra Infinita, which feels very young, primary and undeveloped. They have 46 separate plots in the vineyard, and in this early harvest, they started picking earlier than ever but during the harvest still felt they were too late; but the wines show much better than anticipated. Having the palette of wines to choose from helps in warmer years, when it's more difficult to keep the freshness in the wine, which for them is one of the most important things. It really feels very young and better than expected. They told me they learned a lot from 2017 to manage a year like 2020, when they do a shorter maceration (and in cooler years, they might do a longer maceration). This is gentler than the 2019, with rounder tannins. Drink Date: 2024 - 2032."

2021 "Originating from a selection of parcels planted in alluvial, sandy, granite soils with calcareous content, the 2021 Finca Piedra Infinita was vinified in concrete with whole clusters and aged for 12 months. It opens with a commanding, complex and ceaselessly evolving nose initially dominated by dusty, savory, spice-driven aromas, then blossoming with the classic purple flower notes characteristic of Paraje Altamira. The palate perfectly balances a seductive, sumptuous texture with remarkable richness and discernible finesse, culminating in a quietly explosive, long, intensely vibrant finish. This wine showed exceptional dynamism in the glass, constantly melding luscious black fruits, refined minerality and immaculately polished tannins in a punchy yet weightless, all-encompassing and captivating package. It is a simply magnificent example of contemporary Argentine Malbec."

Zuccardi Parcelas show the uniqueness of a certain piece of land (parcel) within our own vineyards. Sebastián Zuccardi describes the Supercal and Gravascal bottlings as his lieu-dit wines from the Finca Piedra Infinita estate, noting that they are in a stricter style than the Infinita blend and even "a bit unbalanced and extreme early on in terms of their texture."

Legacy & Future Vintages

Zuccardi Finca Piedra Infinita Gravascal 2021

"At the top of the remarkable Zuccardi lineup is the 2021 Finca Piedra Infinita Gravascal, sourced from a single 0.73-hectare parcel dominated by gravel, granite rocks and calcareous stones with 50 centimeters of topsoil. It fermented entirely with whole clusters in unlined concrete tanks and matured for 12 months. The bouquet is both deeper and more lifted than that of its other Piedra Infinita counterparts, offering a wildly herbal, floral, nimble and endlessly complex nose. The palate combines a weightless buoyancy and deft concentration with a pronounced yet restrained mineral-laden core, culminating in a slow-moving, balanced and symmetrical finish with dramatic length, ultra-refined tannins and a striking combination of vertical lift and horizontal dimensionality. This wine brought to mind the transparency pages in the anatomy section of an encyclopedia set, each revealing distinct layers of one unified system layered on top of the other; I found the Supercal bottling akin to the skeletal system of Piedra Infinita, and the Gravascal is its beating heart. I cannot wait to follow this wine in the cellar, and I suspect it has a solid two decades of development ahead."

Zuccardi Finca Piedra Infinita Supercal 2020

"From the high-altitude vineyard site in Paraje Altamira, the 2020 Malbec Finca Piedra Infinita Supercal is from a specially selected site within the vineyard that has consistently shown distinct characteristics that warrant its own bottling. Hugely structured, it oozes salinity, iron, blood, dried herb, and stone, while maintaining underlying freshness. It's all structure and intensity. A fantastic achievement in Malbec and this specific sense of place. Age 25-30 years. Drink: 2025-2055."

"A very young, beautiful malbec that is still a bit reductive now. Fresh herbs, white pepper, violets, iron and some ripe black cherries to the nose. Full-bodied on the palate with plenty of powerful, fine tannins. Mineral and super fine-grained. Needs time. Better after 2026."

Zuccardi Blanc de Blancs 2018

"The 2018 Blanc de Blancs Chardonnay from Tupungato was made using the champenoise method and spent 48 months on lees. Yellow in the glass. The nose presents pastry notes along with toast, hazelnuts and a layer of herbs over a bed of apple. Expansive in the mouth with elegant bubbles, keen freshness and a malic profile. Loud and clear apple flavors are kept going by the precise acidity."
